

We had waited several years before starting our dream home. So when the time came to pick a builder, we weren't in a big rush. We took time to meet with various others before finally meeting Dan.

From the very beginning, we could tell Dan was going to get the job done better than any of the others. He started work right on time and was always willing to add in the extras we kept throwing at him.

We've had Dan back to our house a number of times for regular maintenance, repair and new construction. He just finished our detached garage and carport addition this year. This marks 8 years after our initial construction and we're still calling on Dan to get the job done.

Thanks, Dan!
